COMMUNITY TREE TO BE FIRST BIG FEATURE OF THE NATIONAL SERVICE

Plans Formulated by Representatives of Local Civic Clubs
and Organizations

HELD NIGHT OF DECEMBER 25

Lyman P. Clark of Kiwanis Made Temporary Chairman of the Consolidated Interests Backing Nelson's Idea

By CORINNE ORFF

Plans for the Glendale Community Christmas tree celebration as the first big feature of Glendale Community Service were formulated at a meeting of representatives from the various clubs and civic organizations of this city, held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms Thursday night, with Lyman P. Clark, president of the Kiwanis club, acting as temporary chairman. It was recommended that, weather permitting, the celebration be held early Christmas night, Monday, December 25, on the high school grounds. Definite announcement as to time and place will be made at a later date.

In outlining the purpose of the meeting, Mr. Clark explained that the Community Christmas tree idea had first originated with Herman Nelson, vice president of the Kiwanis club, was adopted by the club and after conferring with other organizations was decided to put it over as a Glendale Community Service project. The meeting was called to bring all the organizations of Glendale together and appoint a joint committee of three to work with an executive committee of Glendale Community Service, including Thomas D. Watson, chairman, R. D. White and Y. M. Hollister. The celebration comes under the department of social recreation of Community Service, of which Mr. Watson is chairman. This combined committee will appoint a general community Christmas celebration chairman and also chairmen of various sub-committees necessary. The committee of three appointed to confer with the executive committee includes Herman Nelson, chairman, Harry James and Mrs. E. S. McKee.

When the matter of a community Christmas celebration was first brought up it was thought a good plan to distribute gifts of food and clothing to the needy of Glendale at the Christmas tree. However, the meeting last night brought out the fact that there is a very efficient Glendale Welfare council and bureau in operation in this city, which centralizes the charity work, and through which most of the organizations of Glendale do their philanthropic work, thereby avoiding duplication. Mrs. L. W. Sinclair, treasurer of the Welfare council, was present and explained that it was with the idea of avoiding duplication that this organization was formed. The names of those receiving assistance through the council are not made public. On hearing the explanation of the work of the Glendale Welfare council it was believed that the proper channel for the distribution of gifts to the needy would not be at the Christmas tree, but through the Welfare council and bureau. A motion carried to the effect that there be a community Christmas tree with a program and that all the organizations represented at the meeting get back of the Welfare bureau with donations and help them get supplies for their Christmas work.

Mrs. W. Q. Widdows of the music committee for the Christmas campaign in connection with the celebration, reported that the committee has requested the singing of familiar carols in the churches and that almost every musical club has been asked to be responsible for a carol and also for the tableau of same. The high school boys' men's clubs and church choirs are also to sing. Proceeding the Christmas tree the various groups, including school children, will visit all parts of the city singing carols. Harry Girard has already offered to superintend putting on a tableau by the Catholics. It is planned that the tree program will last about one hour. Mr. Girard suggested that the celebration be continued the six nights of the week, beginning with Christmas night.

Don Orff of National Community Service, was present and spoke of the splendid feeling which has been manifested by all organizations in connection with community service work. "The purpose of the work in Glendale is to put over programs such as this, with every individual in Glendale getting together, regardless of creed, politics or personal feelings." Requests for assistance or Christmas donations may be made at the Glendale Welfare council and bureau at Los Feliz and Brand boulevard, or at the Community Service headquarters in Glendale at 108 South Brand boulevard. Representatives of various organizations present at the meeting included Lyman P. Clark, president Kiwanis club; H. F. Benner, boy scout executive; W. A. Reynolds, Shrine club; Mrs. Alice Frank James, Glendale Advancement association; Dr. Francis S. Ellis and Mrs. Mary Baxter, Business and Professional Women's club; Mrs. Mae Rosenberg, Pacific Avenue P. T. A.; Mrs. E. S. McKee, Colorado P. T. A.; Mrs. A. W. Tower, Acacia P. T. A.; A. J. Thomas, C. O. Ayars, Tuesday Afternoon club; Mrs. L. W. Sinclair, Glendale Welfare council; Mrs. H. E. Bartlett, Red Cross; William Hunter, Credit Men's association; S. F. Bell, Glendale Exchange club; W. F. Tower, Y. M. C. A.; Thomas D. Watson, Community Service; Rev. Louis Tinning, Presbyterian church; Bert P. Woodard, Kiwanis club; Harry Girard, Knights of Columbus; A. W. Tower, First Methodist church and also Unity Lodge, F. & A. M.; L. T. Rowley, school directors; William Hunter, chamber of commerce; Harley G. Preston, American Legion; Mrs. J. R. Butler, Verdugo Woodlands association; W. Waring, Glendale Exchange club; Herman Nelson, Kiwanis.

LEGION WOMEN TO ENTERTAIN THIS EVENING

The American Legion and Ladies' auxiliary entertainment to night in American Legion hall at 610 East Broadway, promises to be a musical vaudeville and dancing program given by Glendale's most prominent artists in their respective lines. To those of the 'Ladies' auxiliary and American Legion members and their friends that come, a very enjoyable evening is promised. Among the artists that will appear, are the following:

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Girard—duets and solos.
Miss Flora Kilpatrick—Solo numbers.

Mr. Harry James—Monologue artist.
Mrs. Pearl Keller—Dancing numbers by her pupils.

There will also be a surprise. W. B. Kelly is chairman of the December entertainment committee, and he promises a good time to all free of charge.

JULIUS KRANZ BANKS RECEIPTS

Julius Kranz, treasurer of the executive committee for the Salvation Army drive in this city, reports that several hundreds of dollars were banked by him Thursday to the credit of the drive. Dan Kelly having turned in about $200 in contributions from territory covered by representatives of the Rotary club and the Elks' lodge, also between $300 and $400 collected by Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson, who is chairman of the committee. Until all the returns had been checked up, Mr. Kranz declared he would be unable to make any statement of cash on hand for the drive, but the prospects to date, he said, were very promising.

SANTA CLAUS IS WAITING ON THE TENTH PAGE

On page ten of this issue there is an interesting message for readers of the Glendale Daily Press. In fact, it is a message that is worth money to at least four readers who can solve the mystery puzzle of Santa Claus in the advertisement. So Santa Claus is waiting there for you. Read the announcement on page ten and you will be amply paid by so doing.

School Articles Lose Heads Completely as They Appear in Press

When Helens are writing history, things are liable to get mixed for the chroniclers of events, Helen of Troy had most of them in a frenzy. It is reported, even yet.

But, when Helen Buchanan and Helen Morris, both of Glendale Union High, both wrote history of the school page of the Glendale Daily Press, things became very much mixed indeed.

Helen Morris wrote "Relation of History to Citizenship," and Helen Buchanan wrote "History as Training for Citizenship," both for the Monday school page.

It was too much. Both articles lost their heads entirely. Neither knew to which Helen they were allied to.

So they found wrong places and Miss Morris found herself, the head of her article and her name on the subject matter of Miss Buchanan's article and Miss Helen Buchanan's article was under the heading of Miss Morris' article and signature.

It was no fault of the school page editor, who had them right in the first place.

Red Cross Thanks Glendale Daily Press

As chairman of Glendale Chapter of the American Red Cross, I wish to thank the Glendale Press for the generous publicity given in the recent Red Cross roll call and also in the clothing drive for the Near East Relief.

COOK'S CANYON DAM PROJECT IS STARTED

Would Hold 20,000,000 Gallons Supply at Cost of $50,000

An elaborate plan of water conservation in Cook's canyon, which lies in the mountains to the north of a point midway between La Crescenta and Tujunga, was disclosed this morning by Amos Jones, for several years a resident of the La Crescenta Valley.

The plan consists of the erection of a dam about 200 feet in height at a point where the canyon narrows on the Mesaguer property, this structure, it is estimated, to cost about $50,000.

A syndicate composed of George C. Buck, John R. James, Elmer T. Theobald and Amos Jones, has secured the water rights of the canyon, less the riparian rights, which go with the 870 acres on which they have an option.

The dam, when finished, it is estimated, will hold about 20,000,000 gallons of water, and the rights secured include the filling of the dam to its capacity three times a year. It is expected that during the rainy season the dam will be filled with the storm water that falls on the mountains above the dam, and that no difficulty will be experienced in keeping the basin full year around.

The idea is to use this water for domestic purposes only. It will serve the district west of New York avenue in La Crescenta, north and south of Michigan avenue, to Glorieta avenue, Tujunga. For years this section has been standing idle on account of lack of water.

According to present plans work on the new dam will start April 1, and the entire structure will be completed by November 1. From the dam the mains will run down to and into the various parts of the district mentioned.

CONGREGATIONAL TEAM WINS

The Congregational major league team of the Glendale church school basket ball defeated the members of the Central Christian church of Los Angeles by a score of 19 to 12 at a game played Thursday night at the high school gymnasium.

DIRECTORS OF EXCHANGE CLUB OBJECT

Declare Publication of Letter Against Annexation Against Their Wishes

DECLARE "PREMATURE"

Given to the Realty Board for Action, Not for Publication

The board of directors of the Exchange Club of Glendale, which, according to information disseminated to the members of the Glendale Realty Board, Wednesday, had drafted a letter to be sent to the Glendale chamber of commerce, requesting that body to come out squarely for or against annexation, takes exception to the publication of that letter which appeared in the Press yesterday. A resolution to the effect that was adopted by the Exchange Club's directors at a special meeting Thursday night.

The statement was made before the members of the Realty Board by one of the most prominent realtors in Glendale, who secured his information direct from a member of the board of directors of the Exchange Club, that the directors of the Exchange Club had adopted the letter and requested the Realty Board to adopt a similar communication.

In proof of his statements the member of the Realty Board produced a copy of the letter that had been adopted by the Exchange Club directors and which was published in the Glendale Press yesterday.

This letter was read before the Realty Board, whereupon that body voted unanimously, as stated in yesterday's Press, to draft a similar communication to be sent to the Glendale chamber of commerce, and the secretary was directed so to do.

In a discussion concerning this letter in the office of the Glendale Press this morning, it was stated by one of the members of the board of directors of the Exchange Club present, that, although the letter was drafted and adopted only by the board of directors of the Exchange Club, the club as a body would doubtless adopt the letter at its meeting next Wednesday and authorize its being sent to the directors of the chamber of commerce.

December 7, 1922.
At a meeting of the directors of the Exchange Club of Glendale held Thursday evening the following resolution was passed:

WHEREAS it has come to the attention of this board that the Glendale Daily Press printed in its issue of this date a purported letter emanating from and considered at a previous meeting of this board, relating to the question of annexation of Glendale to Los Angeles, and WHEREAS, said publication is misleading in some respects and was unauthorized by us, be it

RESOLVED, That we ask the Glendale Daily Press to print the following statement: The publication of the letter addressed to the Glendale Chamber of Commerce was premature because the said letter was considered only in executive session by the Board of Directors to be thereafter submitted to the club for final action and approval at their regular meeting next Wednesday. Said letter was only in a tentative form, and its publication at this time was inadvertent, and appeared against our wishes.

SERVICE FINANCING DISCUSSED

Budget Committee Is Organized for Development
of Work

DISTRICT HEAD IS HERE

Work Has Been Pushed to Surprising Extent in
This City

Financing of Glendale Community Service on a permanent basis, following the present organization period, was the chief topic of discussion at a meeting of the executive committee held Thursday afternoon at the chamber of commerce rooms. V. M. Hollister, chairman of the board of directors of the local community service, presided. A budget committee, composed of R. D. White, Mrs. Charles Toll, Jesse Smith, Capt. Thomas D. Watson and L. T. Rowley, was appointed to frame a budget for the local work. Immediate action was taken in regard to the raising of the funds to carry on the work.

J. B. Pendleton, district representative of the field work of Community Service in California and a representative of the national organization, was present and expressed his very deep appreciation of the fine work which has been done in Glendale during the preliminary organization period. Mr. Pendleton expressed the continued interest of the national organization in the future work in this city. Alexander Stewart, community music organizer for the Pacific coast district, also a representative of the national organization, gave a brief outline of the music work of Community Service in other cities and expressed the desire that the local music leaders should advise with the Community Service committee in whatever plans may be decided upon for the future music development in Glendale.

The executive committee expressed their approval of the plans which had been made for the community Christmas carols and the hope that the entire community will feel that they have a part in this celebration.

At the close of the session, Grand Knight Girard, Mrs. Girard, and Chancery Albright favored the council with solos and duets.

C. B. ANTHONY IS HELD FOR CHECK KETING HERE

Former Member of Police Force Is Arrested at Kansas
City on Complaint

C. B. Anthony, formerly a member of the Glendale police force, who, according to the local police, wanted on a charge of issuing checks without having the necessary funds in the bank to meet them, has been located in Kansas City and is being held at that place, according to information received this morning at the Glendale police headquarters.

Whether or not he will be returned to Glendale to answer the charge against him has not been learned.

GATEWAY THEATER FRONTAGE BOUGHT BY BUILDERS

Fred A. Miller, B. E. Loper and their associates who are to build and operate the new Gateway Theatre in South Glendale, purchased an additional ten feet frontage today in order to increase the seating capacity of the new playhouse. The ground was secured from Ruth Roland, the well known picture star, who owns the adjoining property. This gives the Gateway a frontage of seventy feet which is ample to provide for a capacity of a thousand seats.

The plans for the new house are about completed and it is to be modern in every particular, including a beautiful pipe organ which has already been purchased at a cost of $20,000. Work on the new building will be started within a few days and it is expected that it will be ready for occupancy in about three or four months.

At the close of the session, Grand Knight Girard, Mrs. Girard, and Chancery Albright favored the council with solos and duets.

If You Are a Real Old-Fashioned Swap Fan, Here's a Chance

Here's a money-making swap or sell. Mr. Telfer of the southwest corner of Honolulu avenue and Oak street, has equity in three dandy lots located near Sparr Heights that he will either sell or swap for good automobile. He also has one pedigree bull that can bark a tune, a terrier pup; one 200-egg old Trusty incubator and one coal oil brooder. Here's enough paraphernalia to start a ranch. What have you? says Mr. Telfer.

Here's another party who wants an automobile. The fever must be taking hold of the folks of Glendale. Mrs. Colley, 1020 Marcella court, has a fine Weber piano. She'd rather ride than play.
O. L. Manding, 423 South Verdugo road, has a Flat chassis he wants to trade. What cha got, says he.

KILLED WHILE HE ILLUSTRATES DEATH

FOND DU LAC, Wis., Dec. 8.—George Kohle followed his wife's footsteps to death here today. Bertha Kohle was electrocuted when she carried an extension wire into the attic of their home.

A few minutes later Kohle attempted to demonstrate how his wife was killed. He took the wire and followed the path of his wife. His hand touched a radiator and he fell dead. Two children survive.

Firemen Make Unique Record at Hooper Fire

In extinguishing the fire following the explosion in the accessory room of the Hooper company plant, Sunday, the Glendale firemen achieved a unique distinction in fire fighting, in that they caused no damage to any goods, through the use of fire-fighting apparatus. Mr. Hooper is reported to be much gratified by the way the fire was handled.

LEADERS' CLASS OF RECREATION TO MEET

Called to Assemble Tonight in Basement Gym
of High

The recreation leaders' class of Community Service meets tonight at 7:30 in the basement gymnasium of the main high school building. This will be the last meeting with Miss Winans, who leaves for Fullerton on Monday. However, the class has formed itself into the Recreation Leaders' club, which will have meetings once a month to learn new games and keep up the good times that the class has enjoyed. These meetings will be in charge of the various teams, which have been chosen by the captains, and which will be announced this evening.

The description of the games taught and the music for some of them has been mimeographed and may be purchased at cost by members of the class. These sets will be ready tonight. They contain descriptions of many games that have not been given in the class and will form a handy guide for those planning social programs of various kinds.

LOCAL CASEYS CLOSE CAREER IN OLD QUARTERS

The meeting of Knights of Columbus held this week was notable as being the last to be held in rented quarters. Announcement that a meeting for the exemplification of the first degree will be held in their new club house, on East Lomita next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock for a class of sixty applicants, was received with great enthusiasm. The degree team of the Los Angeles Council will take on the work and a large delegation of knights from Los Angeles will be present.

At this week's meeting Past Grand Knight Leslie Wright and Past Deputy Grand Knight Andrew were presented with beautiful commemorative cuff links in appreciation of their work of the past year, the presentation speeches being made by Ed Albright and H. V. Henry.

At the close of the session, Grand Knight Girard, Mrs. Girard, and Chancery Albright favored the council with solos and duets.

MRS. RUTH HOLLINGSWORTH KILLED BY PACIFIC ELECTRIC CAR AT WILSON AND BRAND

Aged Woman Struck by Electric Receives Fractured Skull and Succumbs Without Recovering Consciousness

CORONER'S INVESTIGATION STARTED

Seventy-five Years Old, Victim Is Survived by Two Daughters, Who Will Have Charge of the Funeral in Glendale

Mrs. Ruth Grace Katherine Hollingsworth, aged 75 years, who was struck by a Pacific Electric car on Brand, just north of Wilson at 4:20 yesterday afternoon, died at 5 o'clock at the Glendale sanitarium hospital as a result of the injury. Death was caused by a basic fracture of the skull, and the victim did not regain consciousness after the accident. The coroner is investigating.

Immediately after the accident Mrs. Hollingsworth was rushed to the hospital, where everything possible was done for her. The body was removed to the parlors of the Jewel City Undertaking company, after which it was transferred to the Kiefer & Eyrik undertaking establishment.

As was her custom, Mrs. Hollingsworth attended the matinee at a picture theatre in Glendale Thursday afternoon. After leaving the playhouse she walked to Wilson and Brand, where, a few minutes later the accident happened.

Up to the time of her death Mrs. Hollingsworth lived with two of her daughters, Misses Jean and Joyce Hollingsworth and a son, S. P. Hollingsworth, at 406 East Dryden street.

There will be no funeral services over the body and the remains will be cremated. It has been requested that no flowers be sent by friends.

In addition to the son and daughters named Mrs. Hollingsworth is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Radcliff Hollingsworth, 414 East Dryden and Mrs. Zora Ritschel, 831 North Louise street; and three sons—B. H., S. P. and O. N. Hollingsworth, all of Ardmore, Texas. Mrs. Hollingsworth was a resident of Glendale for the past ten years, previous to which time she lived in Los Angeles and San Diego. She came to California from Austin, Texas, which was the family home town for many years.

CO-OPERATION AS SERVICE BASIS

Importance of Self-expression Told at Colorado
P. T. A. Meeting

Cooperation in Community Service and the importance of Self-Expression were the principal thoughts of the meeting of the Colorado Street Parent-Teacher
Association, of which Mrs. E. S.
McKee is president, held at the school Thursday afternoon. Preceding the regular business session refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served. The meeting opened with the salute to the flag and singing of America. As the room mother of the A5 grade
has moved from the district Mrs.
Carson was appointed to fill her place.

The palm for the room having the most mothers present at the meeting was awarded to Miss June Hamill's room for the month. Miss Ida Waite, principal of the school, spoke briefly
regarding the sale of Christmas seals
for tubercular and health work.
Mrs. McKee spoke regarding the Community Christmas tree and carol campaign and asked that all take part in the celebration, detailed plans for which will be announced later.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. L. Scharnikow, chairman of the program committee,
who announced the following nam-
bers, all of which were very much enjoyed: Musical reading, "In the Usual Way," by Miss Dorothy Woods, who responded to an encores
by giving an Italian dialect reading "Between Two Loves" and
"Cupid Swallowed;" talk on "Illuminations," by Walter Cash, pupil of the Colorado street school, in connection with Education Week; piano solo, by Mrs. Kershman of Los Angeles, "The Third Ballad" (Lohapin). Mrs. Evelyn M. S.
Labadie of the Emerson School of Self-Expression gave a talk on "Expression," during which she stated that a vital matter of importance for the success of an individual is his ability to express ideas. "It is not what you know, but what you can put across that enters into anything. The child should be taught to express ideas and not words. It is not so much what you say but how you say it." She concluded her talk by giving Edgar Guest's poem, "It Cannot Be Done."
H. Biederman of the Emerson School gave a group of two readings, "Her Way" and "The Skinners."

Mrs. Nanno Woods was asked to give a few words regarding the Glendale Community Players which recently organized. She said "the two underlying principles that all community players should have are: 1. They play not for any commercial profit but purely for the love of the art. The players do not receive any money for their play. However, all organizations, no matter how altruistic they may be must have some money. The community players need it for their costuming and manuscripts. That is why they sometimes charge admission when plays are given by them, although the players themselves do not get the money. 2.
They are absolutely democratic.
Anyone in the community may become a community player. The Glendale Community Players at present have just one group of thirty members, but it is hoped that other groups will soon be formed.

room by an attack of tonsillitis.
Members and guests had been requested to bring souvenirs of Revolutionary days and the collection
thus brought together was of surprising interest and beauty. The articles were on display before the meeting was called to order by Mrs.
C. H. Houston, vice regent, and then the owners were called upon in turn to give their history while the object was passed from hand to hand for a closer inspection.

Mrs. Ford started the ball rolling by exhibiting a latin grammar which had belonged to her great grandfather.

Mrs. T. W. Preston showed a wonderful watch that still keeps time and strikes the hours which was inherited by Mr. Preston from his great grandfather, Thomas Smith Webb, together with two beautiful pieces of hand-wrought silver made by Pittman, a silversmith of Paul Revere's time.

Thomas Smith Webb organized the first commandery in New York and De Witt Clinton, second governor of New York, was his first commander. The watch is 150 years old. Mrs. Houston also exhibited a quaint china plate 150 years old
which had belonged to De Witt Clinton.

Mrs. Drake passed around a very beautiful baby's cap 135 years old.

Miss Ida Myers showed an old-fashioned gold pin more than 135
years old, and a spinning wheel,
which had belonged to her ances-
tress, Elizabeth Duncan, born 1779.
In that connection she read a beautiful little original poem about the spinning wheel.

Mrs. L. M. Pierce showed pieces of an embroidered silk gown worn by an ancestress at the reception given the first governor of the colonies, also showing a little spoon that is said to have been used by Mrs. Brown showed a silver rattle, 120 years old, also a quaint snuff box.

Mrs. Jencks looked quite formidable with a flintlock gun which had been used by her husband's great grandfather in the war of 1812. He was a captain of militia in the war of 1812. In that connection she thought the song, "Captain Jencks," started about that time.

Though not so old as some of the treasures exhibited great interest was excited by a wonderful gift of a book to his lady. Herbert Mann, which was hand-quilted in patterns by her mother and aunt seventy years ago when they made a business of manufacturing them for $5 apiece. It was evident to those present that the Marseilles quilts of today are the machine made imitations of this beautiful hand work.

Mrs. Purrier is the possessor of a quaint vanity case and sweetmeat holder about 200 years old, the gift of a friend to his lady.

A hair breastpin was passed around by Mrs. Mitchell. Mrs.
Crawford contributed framed copies of the Ulster County Gazette published in 1800, giving minute
particulars of the funeral services for George Washington.

A most interesting old pewter
bowl and ladle was the property of Mrs. Butterfield who explained that the articles were a wedding gift to her great grandmother.

Mrs. Houston showed a photograph of the sword of John Houston used by him in the war of 1812 which had been presented by his descendants to the University of Pennsylvania, from which he was graduated, and which had mounted it with letters of recommendation received from English
professors when John Houston made application for entrance to the Pennsylvania university.

Mrs. Lucy Smith Saylor permitted the ladies to see a treasured copy of the genealogy of the Timothy Smith family which descends from Peregrine White.

Attention was called to the framed samples belonging to Mrs.
Braly, of bed hangings embroidered
by an ancestress, a daughter of General Moses Little, who was on the staff of General Washington, and who had entertained him in his home, Washington sleeping in this particular bed.

The collection for the day realized the hopes of the chapter and was doubled by Mr. Braly who took upon himself the duties of host and hostess in the absence of Mrs. Braly. The chapter was thus enabled to send to the Maternity Cottage, which is the special object of its benefactors, a check to complete the $1000 gift with which it will now be credited.

Mr. Braly contributed some very interesting stories of old days in the west which gave pleasant variety to the program, one concerning a group of bandits known as "The Murray Band," the leader of which conducted camp meetings while his lieutenants rounded up the horses of attendants on the meetings. His story involved a nice point of honor on the part of a young brasher carried off by the bandits by mistake and who broke the vow of secrecy he took when the band spared his life.

The list of guests included: Mrs.
W. E. Cleveland, Mrs. Mary N.
Drake, Mrs. F. E. Elwood, Mrs.
John Pearl, Miss Goff, Mrs. R. L.
Brooks, Mrs. Sarah M. Dann, Mrs.
L. M. Peirce, Mrs. H. A. Strong,

THE PURPOSE OF SCHOOL TEACHERS' ORGANIZATIONS

By AILEEN RENISON

Owing to the fact that during the past few years there has been considerable publicity on the question of teachers' salaries, it is not unlikely that the public in general has formed the opinion that the purpose of increasing their financial status. While it is true that they have taken up the question of salaries and have encouraged legislation in their own behalf, which is not only natural, but the inalienable right of every citizen, this has been but a very small part of their campaign for the raising of the standard of the teaching profession and the advancement of education.

Nor have they been concerned alone with the professional side, for equal stress has been laid upon the education of the child and the administration of the school.

In order that the above problems could be dealt with in an effective manner, there was established in 1887 the National Teachers' association, now known as the National Education association. The purpose of this organization is to promote the cause of popular education in the United States and to elevate the character and advance the interests of the profession of teaching. The membership is composed of teachers, librarians, and all those who are in any way connected with educational work.

The association has created departments representing every phase of professional and educational work. Each is expected to make reports of investigations and to secure articles which have direct bearing upon the several subjects. Through the instrumentality of the monthly journal of the educational association these reports and articles as well as the addresses given at the annual conventions, are sent broadcast to the thousands of subscribers.

Realizing the great benefit derived from such organizations, several states conceived the idea of creating state associations. California was the first and its successful attempts set an example for several other states. The California Teachers' association deals with problems which concern the California student, teacher, and school administrator. A council created for the purpose of investigation and observation, publishes all reports in The Sierra Educational News, which is distributed to practically all the California teachers, for the membership runs high. In addition to these reports there are occasional inspiring professional articles inserted. The association holds annual meetings to which representatives are sent from the local organizations. In Glendale there are two local

CROSS STITCH IS RETURNING TO ITS OWN

Russian Designs Bringing Needlework Back Into Favor

With the revival of Russian designs and colorings has come a return to the cross stitch loved of our great grandmothers and all succeeding generations. It is said to have been invented for the beautifying of the towels used in connection with Russian tea, which is, or was, quite a serious ceremonial in social life, but like all beauty it outgrew its original limitations and came to adorn the peasant's apron. Here in America it is truly unconfined and makes a charming garniture for frocks, particularly for young girls. It is not easy to conceive of a prettier decoration than a band of cross-stitch embroidery above the fringe which terminates the skirt or the end of the sleeve. It particularly lends itself to the basket weaves in wool and cotton and seems most appropriate when scarlet enters into it. Beauty and red are said to be synonymous terms in Russia.

Mrs. W. L. Andrews was a guest at Ambassador Hotel at a dinner Saturday night given by probation officers and judges. The dinner was followed by speeches after which the company adjourned to the ball room and danced until 12 o'clock. Mrs. Andrews has been officially appointed probation officer in Department A, Superior Court, under Judge Weyl.

The Glendale City Teachers' club and the Glendale Union High School Teachers' club. The former was established in 1919 and elected for its president Miss Sarah Midealf. Miss Carrie Noble, who is now president, represented her organization at the last National Educational association convention in Boston. The high school club was organized during the same year. Mr. A. L. Ferguson, vice principal of the high school, was elected its first president. The meetings are held monthly with Mr. Paul E. Webb, acting as president.

The aims of the local organization are to advance the interests of the schools in Glendale, to cultivate the spirit of sympathy, to continue to raise the standard of the profession, and to make the importance of educational matters felt in the community at large.

It is through such organizations and the co-operation of the public that the schools of the United States have risen to what they are today; though still far from perfect. It is through the continued effort of such teachers' organizations that the child of today is made the better citizen of tomorrow.

GLENDALE MUSIC CLUB CONCERT IS TREAT

BY GERTRUDE GIBBS

Those who failed to attend the concert given by the Glendale Music Club Thursday evening missed an artistic treat. It was a recital of folk songs of all nations, appropriately and beautifully costumed, interpreted with rare intelligence and charm, especially the piquant French numbers. Miss Gess has dramatic ability of such a high order that her fine mezzo-soprano voice is almost accessory. The reason why the program was so satisfying and why it lingers in the memory was found in the exquisite finish of every detail and the chaste restraint of its abandon, if the contradiction may be permitted, in the numerous numbers. To see her walk about and seat herself gowned in the full skirted flowered silk which had been worn by Mrs. Lincoln when mistress of the White House was a picture to be cherished, and the same delicate art featured every number.

The songs of the nativity were exquisitely rendered and peculiarly appropriate to the Christmas season. In this group she was assisted by a quartette of Glendale singers, Mrs. C. A. Parker, Mrs. Frank Arnold, Mrs. A. M. Draper and Mrs. MacCallin who softly sang "Holy Night" off stage.

In spite of the length of the program, about two hours, the audience which had warmly encored every group and thus stolen several extras, was reluctant to relinquish her. In response to what amounted to an ovation of applause she sang a Caucasian song of wine as a solace for sorrow.

The history of the numbers sung and of the emotions which inspired them, contributed in no small degree to the interest of the performance and it is safe to predict that should Miss Gess come again to Glendale she would draw a big audience.

The singer was introduced by Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, president of the club, who announced that Charles Wakefield Cadman and the Indian Princess, who interprets his songs, would be the entertainers at the club's next concert, and that all who take out memberships for the second half of the year, will be permitted to attend the Cadman concert without charge.

Father's umbrella was not to be found anywhere. So he asked the members of the family if they had seen it. "I think Mr. Benson took it last night," said Johnny.

"What makes you think that, my son?"

"Cause when I was in the hall last night I heard him say to sister: 'Well, I'll have to steal one.'"

ADaily Tour of Glendale Stores

"SHOES IS SHOES," KAFATERIA MOTTO

"Pige is Pige," as is so thoroughly demonstrated in Ellis Parker Butler's deliciously humorous story or the name. And "Shoes is Shoes" might well be the slogan of Glendale's Kafateria Shoe Store at 126 North Brand. Mr. Cushman, the manager of this store, which is one of the 12 owned and conducted by one company, says that the policy firmly adhered to constantly is to handle no largely advertised brand, for such, though undoubtedly of fine quality, must sell much higher than equally reliable brands that can be sold so much more cheaply because large sums of money are not spent in asserting the claims of superiority. The buyers for these 12 stores are constantly on the alert and wherever a manufacturer is found who puts out shoes that conform to the high standard set by the company, negotiations are entered into with him at once. In that way shoes equal and sometimes superior in quality to brands selling for $4.85, in fact the policy which has made this great company such a wonderful success is summed up in the legend seen at the bottom of every ad: "Reminder: If it is a novelty we have it—at $4.85."

Hold-Over Officers Entertain Secretaries

Past Presidents Roy Kent and V. M. Hollister, A. R. Eastman, Secretary J. M. Rhoades and Assistant Secretary E. F. Sanders were guests of hold-over members of the directorate of the chamber of commerce at a dinner given at the Mary Louise Tea room Thursday evening at which covers were laid for the guests mentioned and for Messrs and Mesdames George Bentley, Owen Emery, Jesse E. Smith, Peter Ferry, David Gregg, Daniel Campbell, C. D. Lashy, Richardson D. White and J. G. Huntley.

Following the dinner talks were made by Messrs. Cooper, Hollister, Smith, Eastman, Sanders and Rhoades and Mrs. J. G. Huntley. Owen Emery led in community singing and then the party adjourned to the Morocco theater, where the balance of the evening was spent.

L. G. Sherman of 316 West Lexington drive, who had been confined to his home for several months as the result of injuries received when he was thrown by a heavy wave while in bathing at Hermosa Beach this summer, has recovered sufficiently now so as to be able to attend to his business in Los Angeles.

Society LODGES - CLUBS - CHURCHES

ROYAL NEIGHBORS ELECT OFFICERS

At the regular meeting of Glendale chapter of the Royal Neighbors of America, held Thursday night at the R. of P. hall at Park avenue and Brand boulevard, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year, to be installed in January: Mrs. Estella Hock, orator; Mrs. Ida M. Leach, vice orator; Mrs. Veneta Bunting, president; Mrs. Anna L. Smith, chancellor; Mrs. Blanche Gemmell, recorder; Mrs. Maude Rucker, receiver; Mrs. Estella Rockwell, marshal; Mrs. Nora Molz, inner sentinel; Mrs. Lillian Howes, manager; Dr. Laura J. Brown and Dr. H. C. Smith, physicians.

PROBATION OFFICER TO SPEAK AT TRI MU

The Tri Mu Bible Class of the First Baptist Church will have a social and business dinner at the church tonight at which Mr. Holland, the Los Angeles County Probation Officer, will be the principal speaker. In addition to his talk on this vital subject of his work, a fine musical program has been arranged by the committee in charge. The annual election of officers will also take place tonight.

MRS. E. E. EAST IS HOSTESS TO CLUB

Mrs. E. E. East of 121 West Lexington drive entertained the members of the Auction Science Bridge club at luncheon and cards at her home Thursday afternoon. Those playing were Mesdames Baxtor, Blue, Bondeaux, Draper, East, Everington, Meddick, Meadows, Macpherson, Howard and Rogers, and Miss Morgan. First prize was awarded to Mrs. East and second prize to Mrs. Meadows.

ARTS AND CRAFTS SECTION NO. 1, MEETS

The meeting of Arts and Crafts section, No. 1 of the Tuesday afternoon club, of which Mrs. Fred Deal is curator, at Pendroy's, Thursday, was attended by twenty members of the section. The time was spent in decorating vases, and other articles with sealing wax, which is done by gradually covering it with wax and twirling it over an alcohol lamp.

Mrs. D. B. Edwards of 803 East Acacia avenue, has as her guests today Mrs. C. W. Riley, Miss Genevieve Riley, and Miss Ida Robinson, all of Pasadena.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mendelson, formerly of Glendale, and who have been spending some time in Los Angeles recently, were dinner guests Saturday night of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Peirce of 317 West Vine street.

MRS. LESLIE O. CARLISLE IS LUNCHEON HOSTESS

Mrs. Leslie O. Carlisle of 421 West Myrtle street was luncheon hostess Thursday to the members of the Navajo Needlework Club. A color scheme of pink was carried out in the decorations of sweet peas. The guests included Mrs. M. C. Fuller, Mrs. E. O. Carlisle, Mrs. Mark Carlisle, Mrs. F. A. Koonz, Mrs. E. Bruce, Mrs. J. C. Waite, Mrs. J. D. Root and the hostess, Mrs. L. O. Carlisle.

CHAPTER C. J. OF P. E. O. HOLDS ALL DAY MEETING

The members of Chapter C. J. P. E. O., held an all-day meeting Thursday at the home of Miss Martha Cox, 205 East Maple Street, with Mrs. Sybella Moule and Mrs. F. Barton as assistant hostesses. At the business meeting held in the morning plans were made for a Christmas party. Donations were brought for the True Love Home in Los Angeles. Members of the chapter engaged in piecing quilts for the Welfare association of Glendale.

A noon luncheon was served by the hostesses and followed by a program, including a reading by Mrs. Elizabeth Kemp, "How the Christmas Guest Came," and a paper by Mrs. Gladys Porter, "Our Relations to Japan." There were two guests present, Mrs. Nell Ayres of Chapter BA, P. E. O. of Glendale, and Miss Herrick of Long Beach. A pleasant social hour followed the program and the meeting then adjourned.

CONGREGATIONAL AUXILIARY PLAN XMAS SHOP

At the meeting of the members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Congregational church held Thursday at the home of Mrs. H. W. Yarrick, plans were made for holding the Santa Claus Shoppe at 228 South Brand boulevard, in the rooms formerly occupied by the White Inn cafe, on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. The dinner and program which was planned to take place in the basement of the church have been postponed until some time in January, after the church is completed. Election of officers was also an important matter taken up at the business session, the following being chosen: Mrs. Peter Hanson, president; Mrs. Laurender, vice-president; Mrs. L. T. Rowley, secretary; and Mrs. Chapman, treasurer. Mrs. G. F. Colson is the retiring president.

MRS. GRIFFIN IS SURPRISED BY VETERAN ORGANIZATIONS

Mrs. Joseph V. Griffin, who has recently moved into her new home at 633 West Alexander street, was the guest of honor at a surprise house-warming party given Thursday night by the Sons and Daughters of Veterans and also the Auxiliary No. 7 of the Sons of Vet-

HOW THE XMAS SEAL STARTED

One of the most interesting things about the Christmas seal is the impulse which started it on its merciful way to the heart of Emily P. Blissell of Wilmington, Del., fifteen years ago to help reduce the death toll of tuberculosis. Since then over $20,000,000 has been raised by this means by the Red Cross to carry on its fight against the white plague. Sanatoria and other institutions have been built which have provided 60,000 beds for tuberculosis patients.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Paugh, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Van Wie, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goldsmith, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Daner, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Richardson, Mrs. Tom Gillett, Mrs. Martha McCown, Mrs. Joe Hibbert, Mrs. Will Dutton, Mrs. Maizie Goldsmith, Mrs. Alice Sheldon, Mrs. Mary Chadwick, Mrs. Martha Gaier and Mrs. Hattie Davidson, Miss Flo Chadwick, Miss Dorothy Daner, Miss Elsie Wilson and Miss Ruth Fraich, Colburn Daner, W. H. Davis, Devoyne Davidson.

Mrs. Maizie Goldsmith entertained with a group of vocal selections, and the evening's program also included piano solos by Miss Dorothy Daner and Miss Flo Chadwick, humorous songs by Joseph Griffin and readings by A. J. Van Wie. Home made cake and coffee was served and the guest of honor was presented with a large art mirror as a gift from her friends.

Mrs. Griffin is active in the work of the Mary Jane Gillett Tent, Daughters of Veterans and also in Auxiliary No. 7.

MRS. LUDKE ENTERTAINS LAMASTAD BRIDGE CLUB

Mrs. James Julius Ludke of Columbus and Pioneer avenues on Thursday entertained the Lamastad Bridge club. A beautifully appointed luncheon preceded play, in which the hostess carried out the Christmas motif in a wonderful manner with decorations of red, white and green. Red candles in tall glass candlesticks were placed at the corners of the board which was centered with a cut glass bowl filled with red carnations and maidenhair fern.

Mrs. Ed Gates of Grand View avenue won first prize, Mrs. Walter Jones as substitute for Miss Ann Morgan received the guest prize, and to the hostess went the booby favor.

Mrs. Ludke is a comparatively newcomer from San Diego, and is a charming addition to the younger set. Members of the club present were Mrs. Betner, Mrs. Ed Gates, Mrs. Mabel Rudy, Mrs. W. L. Andrews, Mrs. Warren Roberts, Mrs. R. K. Snow and the hostess.

WOMEN'S XMAS GIFTS LACK VIRTUE OF NOVELTY

Wouldn't it be nice if a few geniuses would invent something new in the way of Christmas gifts for men. But they don't. Pick up any magazine which pretends to give advice on the subject and you find the same lists of acceptable presents you have seen since you first learned to read. Perhaps it is because men and their habits change but little. Anyway, it is the familiar catalogue of pipes, cigar holders, playing cards, belts, golf sticks, cuff links, stick pins, pocket books, ash trays, dressing gowns, and ties. The only change is the pattern, the color and the price, particularly the price—but that is moderating as visit to the shops of Glendale will disclose.

A certain elementary school was visited one day by an important education authority, who cross-examined the scholars, and was eminently satisfied with the results. The boys strained their brains and did their dutiful best.

"Well," said the visitor at last, "is there any lad here who would like to ask me something?"

"Yes sir!" Came a tired voice.

"What time does your train leave?"

BROWN VELOUR COAT

For formal occasions as well as for general wear nothing would give more satisfaction than a coat of brown velour richly trimmed with beige caracul.

DEATHS - FUNERALS

CHARLES H. LOUKS

Charles H. Louks passed away in Glendale, Thursday, December 7, 1922, at the age of 75 years. He was a retired farmer and native of New York. Mr. Louks had been a resident of Glendale for three years. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Agnes E. Louks of 319 West Palmer avenue, a daughter, Mrs. C. E. Bennett of 615 South Glendale avenue, and two sons, Frank L. Louks of Sacramento and Bert G. Louks of Alhambra.

Funeral services will be held at the chapel of L. G. Scovern Undertaking company Saturday afternoon at 2:30, with interment at Forest Lawn.

SELBY T. BRENGLE

Funeral services were held at 10 o'clock this morning over the body of Selby T. Brengle of Pasadena, who was fatally injured in the explosion which occurred Sunday afternoon at the supply station of the William H. Hooper company, 222 East Broadway. They were held at the undertaking parlors of Kiefer and Erickson on East Broadway. The body was interred in the Mountain View cemetery.

WE ARE NOW OFFERING YOU AN OPPORTUNITY TO SECURE ONE OF THOSE GREAT BIG, HIGHLY RESTRICTED, DESIRABLE LOTS IN THE

MONTGOMERY TRACT

On Kenneth Road

Right at the corner of Pacific Ave. This is well known to be the very most desirable section of the Kenneth Road District, where the restrictions are such that they afford you the greatest protection; where every lot has an unobstructed view of the great territory adjacent thereto, and where only the highest class construction in residences obtains. We have just secured and are now offering great big lots here for

Only $100 Down

—the balance to be paid at only $25.00 per month, INCLUDING INTEREST; and when you secure a great big, sightly lot in this location for $1800 and up and on such unheard of terms as those, you are indeed fortunate if you get one before they are entirely sold out. Remember, two weeks ago we sold out the Clement Orange tract, just below this, in two days.

What Do You Think Will Happen in This Case?

We suggest that you think over this VERY SERIOUSLY, for about THREE MINUTES, and then get to this office just as fast as you can. 'Nuf said.

NOT THE LEAGUE, BUT

M. Clemenceau declares that he is not urging the United States to enter the League of Nations. He would be better satisfied to have this country and England enter into a compact to defend France against aggression. This is somewhat of a departure from his general plea in behalf of having America take up the European interests that he charges this country with having neglected. That there is basis for his accusation and reproach will have to be admitted. This country did withdraw hastily after the armistice, and so far as obliged to express itself through the senate, has adopted a policy of aloofness.

It is wholly natural that the United States and England should be on friendly terms. There might easily arise circumstances that would make such a course imperative. If they were to declare themselves ready to protect France from aggression, it is interesting to guess what role France would be expected to assume. Just at present the people of that country are in a militaristic mood. They maintain a large army. They talk of excursions across the Rhine. Surely a nation sustaining itself on tiptoe for a rush to war, could not expect two other nations to warn the world to let it alone.

The people of the United States hope that wars are to be no more, but it is a faint hope, and grows fainter. They view with apprehension the attempt to whittle the navy to the potency of a fisher fleet, and to reduce the army to a few skeletonized regiments. They desire to be able to protect themselves. They do not see how it is their duty, their appeals to reason having failed, to tell a warlike Europe that if it tries to start something, America will come over to stop it. Let them refrain from starting anything over there, or starting it, be ready to accept the consequences.

DAUGHERTY UNDER FIRE

Attorney General Daugherty shows no inclination to run from his guns in the face of enemy fire. The attempt to impeach him he ascribes to a desire to force the government to reveal the evidence it has for prosecution of certain accused profiteers. So far as the public is permitted to know, this may or may not be the case. At any rate the official is given a decided advantage by the fact that he is engaged in prosecutions on a large scale of persons charged with having been crooked on a large scale. The truth concerning these charges, involving the alleged theft of millions of money supplied by the people in time of war, really must be regarded as of first importance. If Mr. Daugherty is so buttressed by evidence as to be able to prove the allegations set forth in the indictments, the effort to disturb him in his position will be open to the suspicion of not having been made in good faith. The fact that after the work of recovering the stolen money, and punishing the thieves has been completed, or has failed, Mr. Daugherty still will be accessible, is worth bearing in mind. If his course has been so bad that the act of bringing the rogues to justice, does not seem to soften the degree of wickedness, of course it will be proper to do with Daugherty exactly that suggested by his conduct; not necessarily that which is now spurring his foes to discredit him, and to hamper the work of his office.

CONSTANTINE IN AMERICA

There are intimations that former King Constantine, expelled from his own land, may come to the United States. This country has had comparatively few visits from royalty, ex-royalty, or genuinely titled folk. Americans are not trained for such contact, and even might be embarrassed by the presence of so tawdry a specimen as Constantine. Of course there would be some ready to receive him as though the glory and pomp of place clung to him still. By and large, however, the visitor would find little admiration showered upon himself. The world has learned of him that he is a pretty bad lot. He never was much of a monarch, for he was untrue to his own people. Once banished for proved unfitness, he had the hardihood to get the throne again, whereupon he proceeded to make it totter so violently that the kingdom was shaken, and before the tremors had subsided, the king, having acquired a sudden "ex," was across the line; no scepter, no royal robes, but a whole skin which, as times are in Europe, is nothing to be regarded lightly.

There are many of Constantine's nationality in this country. Groups and colonies of them exist in southern California. They raise vegetables, and sell the same at what seems to be a profit. At scores of stands they shine the shoes of the passer-by, if he can be induced to pause. They seem to be on the average, a law-abiding element, although not yet quite adjusted to the requirements of prohibition. The attitude of Greeks in the United States towards Constantine would be worth examining into before he shall arrive. If they are fairly friendly, and, out of sympathy, ready to offer him a job, there could be no harm in letting him slip through Ellis Island.

RATTLING THE DRY BONES

When, some two millions of years ago, the large and lusty Baluchistherium, felt its strength waning, and lay down to die, perhaps it thought that its rest was to be undisturbed. It was mistaken. Human beings, with tools for excavating, and trained senses for putting two bones and two bones together, invaded the quiet spot, dug up the skeleton, and soon the Baluchistherium will rear anew its mighty shape. It will have a private apartment in a museum, and its quarters will be about the size of a hangar.

In seeking to give an idea of the gigantic proportions of the oasous find, the professor in charge said that two men were required to lift its funny bone. Great is science! There probably exist even in this enlightened age people ignorant that the animal mentioned above, and too much trouble to spell again, ever lived and roamed the Gobi desert. Upon the better informed there dawns now for the first time the knowledge that it had a funny bone. All these discoveries add to perplexity. The living, breathing organism that two million years ago settled into the Gobi sands has to be recognized. Over the places that once trembled to its awful tread, a new and different fauna took up its habitat later. In this is a prop for the theory of evolution, which some sects denounce as wicked, and such individuals as Voliva, frankly hurtle into the discard.

"THINGS DO NOT HAPPEN"

According to a recent statement by Will H. Hays, head of the picture industry, "things do not happen—they are brought about."

This is a perfectly natural view to one who has risen to success. It is, perhaps, not unexpected that the successful man should accept the responsibility for himself, thus making the prize won, the direct reward of virtue. It also is logical, in a sense, because every event that transpires is the effect of a cause. The person affected by the event, however, may have no connection with the cause. He succeeds or he fails in part as a response to his own qualities of mind and body. Whatever these qualities, they were bestowed upon him as a beneficent gift, or as a handicap.

If a man is walking by a spot where a lofty building is being erected, and a bricklayer at the twentieth story drops a brick, and it strikes the head of the pedestrian, something certainly has happened. It has happened chiefly to an innocent victim. Had he been elsewhere at the moment the brick descended, all might have been well, but he happened to be just where he was.

"Things are brought about" through laws that the human mind had no part in framing, only vaguely understands, and perhaps understands not at all. But when thus brought about, to say that "things happen" is merely to express precisely the same truth in other words.

WILL ISOLATION PAY?

By DR. FRANK CRANE

There is no doubt that the United States is a self-sufficient nation. By putting up tariff barriers and immigration walls we could sever connections with every other nation in the world and produce enough to feed, clothe and house our people. There is no doubt about that. But will it pay? First of all, to abandon our foreign trade would mean that we would have to turn one-half of our cotton lands into pasture, and that we would have to cut our business in iron and copper mining and in steel milling in two. This cannot be done without tremendous unemployment and widespread ruin. Probably we would get over it in time, but a great many people would be ruined in the meanwhile.

To maintain a policy of isolation implies keeping up an enormous fleet and army to be prepared to defend ourselves. It costs infinitely more to get ready to defend ourselves by armies than it does to defend ourselves by courtesy and common sense. The expenses of the United States in the last war were hundreds of times greater than any expense of a world federation could possibly be. Every chamber of commerce, every convention of business men of any kind, clearly sees that it is our duty to enter in some way into an agreement with the other nations of the world. This feeling has been so strong that the present administration called a conference at Washington and arranged a four-power treaty. On account of aloofness, however, this treaty, while it has been ratified by our senate, has not been ratified by any European power. It may never be ratified by France, which disliked the Washington conference. Italy will certainly not ratify it if France does not.

Sooner or later the powers that be must realize that they will have to give up the insane and childish program of isolation, not on account of Europe, but on account of ourselves.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

STANDARD OF USAGE

Thomas R. Lounsbury, in his discussion of the standard of usage in English, imparts some very interesting information.

Following are a few of the locations that he defends:

He emphasizes, as do most grammarians, that the use of either a singular or a plural verb with none has been in good taste for hundreds of years; as, There are none on the table; There is none to help me.

He maintains that the expressions, "some twenty miles," "at length" he spoke" are acceptable. While he asserts that "Tomorrow will be Saturday" is unquestionably correct, he maintains that "Tomorrow is Saturday" is also correct for two reasons. The first reason is that the present tense is very frequently used to convey the idea of future; as, If he defy the king he dies; the second is that the word tomorrow carries the future idea sufficiently.

Mr. Lounsbury's style, as respect the possessive before the gerund, is interesting. On page 21, we read as follows: "All the stock remarks about the speech being in perpetual danger of corruption are found in his pages." And on page 102 we read: "... the chances are greatly in favor of the great author being right in his practices."

Of course there is greater room for argument against a neuter noun's being in the possessive case (speech, for example) than against putting such a noun as author in the possessive case. One might dispute the use of such a locution as "speech's strength, or speech's being; none will dispute the use of such an expression as author's eloquence or author's style. Therefore, at least this can be said, that since it is correct and in good usage to say "in favor of his being right in his practices," it is correct to say "in favor of the author's being right in his practices."

"The Right Word" is planning a survey of usage among careful writers and popular writers, and one locution that will be investigated is the possessive before the gerund.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

Sunshine and fresh air.
That is what the doctor often prescribes.
When the body is sick.
When it has been too much confined to darkness and airlessness and all that.
For a good deal of disease thrives in the dark.

Just as a good deal of evil and ignorance thrives in the dark.
The burglar and the footpad thrive in the dark.
For that is the time when they operate.
The light of day does not appeal to them.

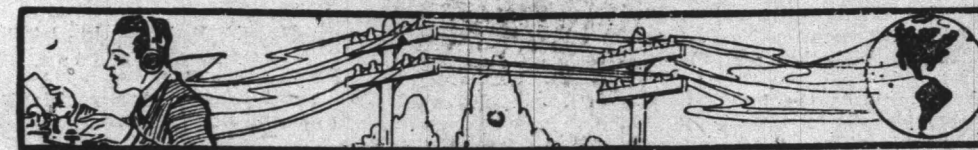

Ignorance and bigotry thrive in the dark.
In the darkness of ignorance.
Truth is the sunlight of which they are afraid.
Knowledge is the light that dissipates them.
Sends them scurrying back into the dark holes from which they come.

Perhaps you have spent a troubled and fearful night.
The darkness has added to your worry and concern.
For darkness was designed for sleep.
Not for wakefulness.
And then after the weary and care-laden night, the rays of the coming dawn streak the east.

The sun lifts himself over the horizon.
There is light and warmth and cheer.
And your fears are dissipated in the light of day.

Nature makes use of her sun and fresh air to the maturing of crops.
To sturdy and vigorous growth.
Look sometime at a root or vine that has grown in the dark.
Thin, pale and attenuated.

Light is necessary for growth and health.

Songs of the Poets

Once On a Time—By Margaret Benson

Once on a time I used to dream
Strange spirits moved about my way,
And I might catch a wisp of gleam,
A glint of pixy or of fay;
Their lives were mingled with my own,
So far they roamed, so near they drew;
And when I from a child had grown,
I woke—and found my dream come true.

For one is clad in coat of fur,
And one is decked with feathers gay;

And fresh air with it.
The wheat field grows green and vigorous in the sunlight.
With the fresh air bathing the stalks and stems.

And so the tree grows sturdy and tall.
And without light the leaves become sickly and pale.

What is true of the physical being is true of the mind.
Sunlight and fresh air is necessary.
Laughter and friendliness and social exchange.
Cheerfulness.

All corresponding to sunlight and fresh air.

In the darkness of morbidity and solitude and fretfulness and envy and greed and bitterness all of the destructive agents of the soul thrive.

They attack the mind as germs attack the body.

And make it sick.

And so the wise physician of the soul prescribes sunlight and fresh air.
For the mind diseased can be ministered to.
It can be stimulated and brightened with the same relative agents that brighten and stimulate physical growth.

A going forth into the world to do good.
A forgetfulness of self.
A resolve to labor with interest.

All of these are the sunlight and fresh air of the soul.
Or the mind if you will.

Get out into the sunlight.
Open the doors and windows of the mind.
Let in the air of friendliness and cheer.
Don't stay in the dark and damp and dismal sickroom with the curtains drawn and the air foul and the mind correspondingly morbid.

THE DEAD AND THE UNWRITTEN LAW

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINSEY

"Speak nothing but good of the dead," not because they are dead; but because, being defenseless, they are unable to reply.

Yet every time the "unwritten law" is invoked as a defense measure in a murder trial the name of some dead person is blackened. The cause of the dead remains undisturbed in court; the name of the dead stands shamed in the eyes of the living.

To kill the body by violence and the reputation by slander are two things on which we set the seal of our approval when we invoke or approve the unwritten law.

Until recently, however, approval of killing in the name of the unwritten law has been general and hearty. But only more recently to any great extent invoked it as a justification for murder.

Now, in the Los Angeles courts, a woman calls it to her aid in endeavoring, as it is said, to escape a charge of murder.

How will the public receive the effort? Will it applaud the woman who kills "in defense of her home" as it has long applauded the men who did this thing?

Perhaps, perhaps not. But if the unwritten law has any basis in justice it should be called to the defense of a woman as well as of a man.

In short, brothers, we were called upon in the recent trial of Clara Phillips on charge of murdering Albert Meadows to look carefully at one of our ancient idols in the full light of day and to approve or disapprove it after careful examination of its workings.

If we accept the "unwritten law" we must accept it for both the sons and daughters of society; and it is a nauseous thing to accept.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

EGYPT AND KEMAL

(Boston Transcript)

It could hardly be supposed that the action of the Angora assembly in trying to establish a caliph without temporal authority would pass unchallenged elsewhere in the Moslem world. No tradition in Islam is more honored than that which has put temporal and spiritual authority in the hands of a single individual. As a civil ruler and a religious chieftain the sultan has received the loyalty of millions of the faithful. The Angora iconoclasts, therefore, have done something which their fellow co-religionists in other parts of the Moslem universe may not accept with equanimity. In Egypt, already, according to a Cairo dispatch to the New York Times, the flames of resentment have flared forth. A leading nationalist organ has declared that the Angora deputies have no right to disregard the tradition of Islam which has placed in the hands of the caliph both temporal and spiritual power. Of even greater significance is the resentment noted at the Moslem university, of Al-Azhar, whose graduates exert so powerful an influence on the course of affairs in the Moslem world. It has been many years since Egypt has looked for leadership wholly to Asiatic Turkey; and her present discontent with certain of the policies of the Kemalists may quite possibly foreshadow the widening of the breach between Cairo and Angora.

May not the breach be widened elsewhere, in Arabia or in India? Is Islam so unified fundamentally as it appeared to be six months ago? It is doubtful indeed if the Kemalists could have done anything which would threaten that unity more than stripping the sultan of his robes of sacerdotal authority.

OBSERVED AT A GLANCE

By HENRY JAMES

Perhaps Clara desired liberty to use a hammer on her husband.

Lists of "greatest men" continue to be compiled, each author so far modestly omitting his own name.

A correspondent asks "Did you ever hear of Swedenborg?" The name really does sound familiar.

In the argument concerning Sunday fishing perhaps it would be well to consult the fish.

Will Hays says "Things do not happen" and they continue to happen to Mr. Hays right along.

There is to be an ordinance against throwing lighted cigarettes out of windows into the street. Doors should be included.

Ralph de Palma is in jail for speeding, although he was going half so fast as he could, when the policeman caught him.

Siki, the Senegalese fighter, says his contest with Carpenter was arranged for the Frenchman to win. But possibly the habit of lying is among the abundant vices of Siki.

The average person, if asked to spell the name of Dickens' favorite burglar would answer "Sykes," and be wrong.

Captured bootleggers say the business no longer is profitable. After payment of fine, possibly not.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The skipping of Clara Phillips by the light of the moon, or whatever light was available, was not wholly devoid of the element of surprise. Perhaps the county jail is so crowded that she just oozed out. Perish in advance the thought that any official on the inside belied her outside.

HENRY JAMES

In the common opinion, this woman has not had a fair deal. Her conduct had been such as clearly entitled her to be hanged, and she got off with a sentence of ten years' minimum. Possibly she was so disgusted at the farce that pride forbade her longer to stay and be a figure in it. This is no occasion to review her crime, details of which cluttered up the public prints for weary weeks. Enough to say that the person guilty, and not shortly thereafter hanged, is an exposition of what criminal lawyers can do with the law, which is to flout, lam-baste, annul and efface it.

Mrs. Obenchain, too, departs, but in a different fashion. If she had to go in secret it was to avoid the adulation of admirers. The circumstances may point to the guilt of an attractive woman, but they can't convict her.

Mrs. Obenchain had had two trials. Her supposed associate had three. A majority of jurors believed both guilty, but there are minds in which there is no intelligence that cannot be snuffed out temporarily by the sight of a pretty woman in distress.

The man Burch is less lucky. They tell him he is crazy, and must be detained for examination. It is possible that in their anxiety to save his neck, relatives of the man have persuaded themselves that he is insane. This persuasive process could not touch anybody else. The lawyers say they believe him insane. In the light of criminal lawyer methods, this avowal fails to impress.

Anyhow the series is over. Justice has received a succession of black eyes, and the public has paid for the spectacle.

Considerable fuss was made not long ago, over the branding of a university student, supposedly by students of a rival institution. It seems now that the act was perpetrated by classmates of the victim, for the purpose of casting odium on the student body of the competitor.

The youths engaged in this scaly trick need more education than is likely to be extracted from their textbooks.

Los Angeles police are searching for a beautiful blackmailer. It was her wont to mingle with the tired business man after hours and then be interrupted by an indignant husband demanding golden snave for his hurts. Or she would compromise for a costly fur, or automobile.

Probably this accentuated the weariness of the tired business man, but he should think of the wisdom acquired by the experience, and find consolation.

New York dry agents, who went wet every time a bribe was offered, have been sentenced to two years in the penitentiary and to pay fines of $2000.

They might be grateful thus to be removed from temptation, but the chances are that they are not.

Luther Burbank says he is not annoyed by attacks being made on him, regarding them as flea-bites. However, a flea bite requires balm.

The wizard ought to cross a hickory club with a spike, and defend himself.

It is not difficult to believe that the fight in which Carpenter was defeated had been "framed" as the process of fixing results in advance is termed. Probably more prizefights are framed than are not. The system is so well understood that indignation is too strong an emotion for it to incite.

That a Senegalese, with the brains of a chimpanzee and the body of a gorilla, can whip a white man, is a matter of not the slightest consequence.

The new settlement with Ireland has been approved in both houses of parliament. This, it is hoped, will end a struggle that has been in progress for centuries.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

I believe in saving money, of course. The man or woman who does not save will never get ahead, unless oil-bursts out spontaneously on the old homestead. But I believe in keeping the saving habit under control. There is such a thing as saving money and squandering one's life. I had rather have pleasant memories when I'm old than the fond knowledge that my heirs will come into a fortune that they cannot dissipate in less than two years, even at their best.

My dear old friend, Mrs. Rachael Carr, is being aimed at in this.

She is the best wife and the dearest mother I know, outside of the Pilgrim family, of course. When she and Old Phil Carr were married a nickel looked as big as a cartwheel to them. They reduced money saving to a science or raised it to an art, or vice versa. They never rode when they could walk. They made their clothes last unbelievably long. They invested with care and prayer. By and by the dividends began to call for investment. Now they are on the borderland of age and they are modestly rich.

And dear old Rachael Carr is still saving and scrimping and penny-pinching.

She has set aside enough so that her daughter will always be sure of a comfortable living. She has made sure that her own son will have a secured income all his life. What is left of her property she will divide between the two. Old Phil breaks out in boils every now and then. The boy has a greasy look. The girl almost lives on apples, which she buys herself, and therefore radiates health.

"Isn't it a shame?" says poor old Rachael Carr. "Wasting all that money on apples."

She never goes to a theater or buys a book or even a magazine. She will die rich, but her memories will be of grudging economy and useless deprivations. She will have paid too high for her riches.

ADVANCEMENT FOLKS LIKE GOLF LINKS

Approve Plans of Oakmont Country Club on Sparr Tract

Speakers at the Glendale Advancement Association were Messrs. Parker and Morris, members of the Board of Directors of the proposed Oakmont Country Club which has purchased 109 acres from the Sparr Heights Company, whereon a golf club house is to be built which, they said, would be along the general lines of the San Gabriel Country Club, only more up to date. They expressed the opinion that the project would link up closely with the hotel which the Advancement Association is promoting and for that reason should be of special interest to the organization. Mr. Ingledue, the presiding officer, agreed with the suggestion and on motion of Dr. Stuart the association went on record as endorsing the project after viewing a panoramic view of the location, which was passed from member to member.

P. J. Hayselden reported that the contract between the Union Pacific and the Glendale-Montrose line relative to electrifying the Glendale Avenue extension had been sent east and received the signatures of the proper officials; that on its return to Los Angeles an application to the California Railroad Commission for a permit will be made and on receipt of that permit actual construction work will begin. He urged the importance of collecting the bonus money subscribed and said that work would be actively undertaken by Herman Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Mercer without delay.

President Ingledue reported for the hotel committee that the project was not only alive but in a very hopeful condition; that Mr. Whitman and Mr. Tremaine were still confident of being able to carry their plans through with the aid of a bonding company and to encourage the committee to do business with them had agreed to deposit $5000 in the bank to be forfeited if they fail to make good on their promises; that two of the Milwaukee Construction Company, are negotiating with the committee and the prospect is bright for a hotel at Broadway and Glendale avenue. Glendale men having taken an option on the property to that end.

Mr. Pfeiffer gave a humorous report of his experience as a worker in the Salvation Army drive as the representative of the association. Dr. Stuart following with a similar story, Charles Stanley telling of experiences of Mrs. Stanley and a reporter of the Chicago Tribune in their investigations of the organization in Chicago which led them to endorse it unqualifiedly. The rest of the time was given to a discussion of a meeting day, the matter finally being left to the president and secretary with instructions to send out notices in accordance with their decision.

SULPHUR IS BEST TO CLEAR UP UGLY,
BROKEN OUT SKIN

Any breaking out or skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickest by applying Menthosulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ-destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation that instantly brings ease from the itching, burning and irritation.

Menthosulphur heals eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment of dandruff. A little jar of Rowles Menthosulphur may be obtained at any drug store. It is used like cold cream. Advertisement.

Satan's Empire Falling

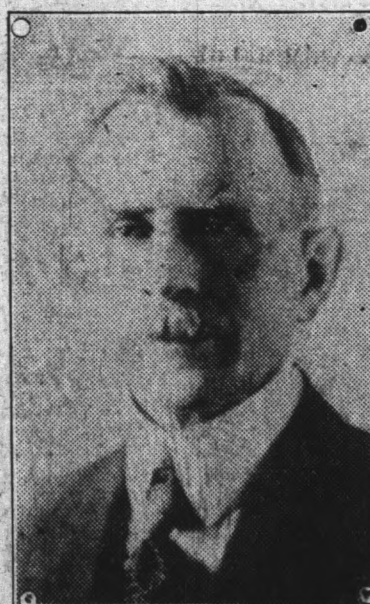

"millions now living will never die"—Judge Rutherford

SATAN'S wicked influence has long been felt in every part of the world. Together with his associate devils he incites people to hatred, strife, murder, and induces war and anarchy, wrecking homes and driving millions to insanity and suicide. Satan caused the fall of man, and established his

EMPIRE. His wicked influence has overreached the denominational churches, causing many clergymen to forsake God and unite with profiteers and politicians to control mankind. But the end is here and his empire is FALLING; and Christ, the rightful King, though invisible, is beginning to reign. Hence the distress of nations, of which Jesus spoke. These troubles will soon reach a climax and disappear, followed quickly by peace and prosperity, as Jesus assumes control.

GERMAN CONFERENCE MEETS PREMIERS IN LONDON

Fates of Three Governments Hang in the Balance as Four Men Confer

LONDON, Dec. 8.—Premiers of the allies came to London today for a conference about Germany with the fate of at least three governments dependent on the outcome.

The conference is referred to as the most decisive. Instead of a great conglomeration of delegates, with their unwieldy staffs, four men will gather around a table at 10 Downing street.

The parley program, it is semi-officially said, will be a discussion of:

1—A moratorium for Germany on condition France holds the Rhine.

2—Adjustments of debts, in view of the American attitude, which is expected to be stated by the United States observer.

3—An international loan, which is considered impossible at present.

4—Reform of Germany's budget and finances.

A STUDENT'S ATTITUDE TOWARD SCHOOL

By ROSS RUSSELL, '26

Just what sort of attitude should the student take toward his school? In order to get the maximum of knowledge, should he let the teacher come all the way, or should he come half way?

Certainly the student should make that effort. He is dealing with one, while the teacher has many on his hands, therefore it requires little hardship on his part to make the work easier for both the teacher and himself.

Anyone who has been a teacher or who knows one personally will soon realize that teaching is a hard job at best. Harmony between the students and the teacher helps not a little to make this work more ideal.

Another thing the student should bear in mind is that schools are meant for the betterment of all and not as a jail where he is dragged to perform Herculean tasks. The happiest and most care-free days of anyone's life are his school days. Without learning what would the world be? The faster literacy is blotted from our country the sooner it will be a more ideal place in which to live. A person without schooling in this day seldom gets far in life. He remains where he is, never progressing.

More thoughtful effort on the student's part to acquire his own education and, perhaps in some cases, more tolerance on the teacher's would soon pave the way to more effective work in the classroom.

WHY I AM PLANNING TO BECOME A TEACHER

By NYLA CHAPMAN, '26

One of the most difficult problems of life is the selection of a suitable vocation. It should be a vocation that yields sufficient income and brings to you the most happiness in its performance.

Regardless of wealth or position, it is the duty of every girl to fit herself to be independent, and of all work outside of the home, teaching is one of the most satisfying. This work creates happiness, affords an opportunity for helping others and satisfies high ideals. Teaching possesses an additional advantage—instead of leading the teacher further from the possibility of successful home-making, it renders her more capable in this respect.

Immigration and normal birth-rate are adding to the vast number of children, and teachers must be provided for them. The demand is far greater than in any other profession open to women.

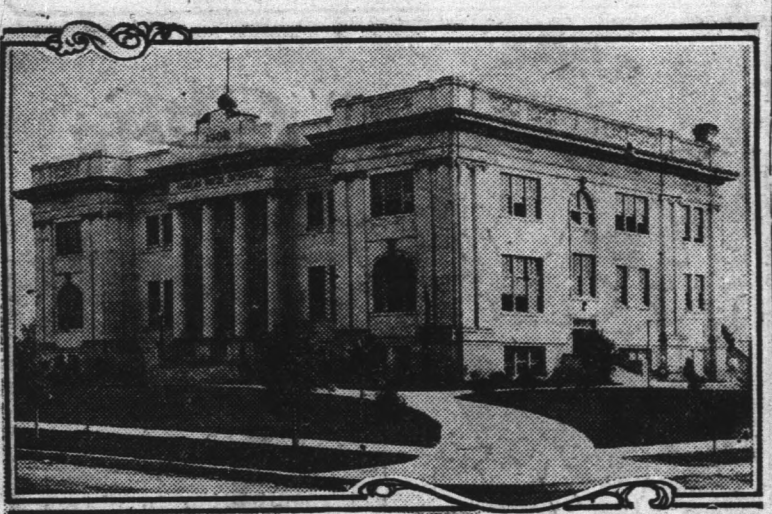

Teaching offers opportunity for service to the state. The teacher must prepare the children for capable citizenship.

The teacher, through her pupils, can spread the lesson of sweetness and light.

Teaching, then, offers to the girl the opportunity to make a living, to study and grow, to be of service and so win a deeper contentment and higher satisfaction than money can buy.

HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING OF 1908

USEFULNESS OF EDUCATION

By WILLIAM J. EGGERS, '25.

To acquaint you with the facts, I will just go back to the time when England had just been conquered by the Normans. The Saxons had formerly help sway.

The Saxons were gruff, uncouth, ill-bred. Their thoughts were centered wholly on greed. They fought for greed, not for honor and glory. The Normans, coming from France, a country of abundant holiness (in the person of the priest or bishop who was always willing to instruct, they were much absent in England) were somewhat educated in the ways of civility, which they had gotten from the priests and bishops. The Saxons became educated to the Norman ways and manners and grew more refined, less greedy. All this was a result of the little education the Normans had received.

Then, to go on to the time of the revolution, turmoil, confusion of France in the eighteenth century, history says they were imbued with the spirit of freedom. They were, but it was a result of nothing but more education. The lower classes in France had purposely been kept in ignorance, so that the kings might retain their absolute rule, but when the people were enlightened by these bishops and priests, they felt their oppression and the king was overthrown. This, also, was a result of the education of the people.

Later in the nineteenth century, the number of inventions and benefits to humanity as a whole (especially in America) was beyond the greatest imagination. Why? Simply because America was the one country that had been the first to see the true way to success. It was invariably through education. They had instituted public schools and as a result became one of the leading nations of the world.

I could go on and give example after example, but surely this is sufficient to show you how education has helped the world on its way. In the future the more education a nation receives as a whole, the greater will be its success.

WILLIAM J. EGGERS.

THE HISTORY OF CALIFORNIA

By Jack Hileman, Age 13 Years; Grade 8-7-11; Wilson Ave. Int.

Before a white man had discovered California, the only inhabitants were Indians, like the Indians of the East. The Indians of the North, called Modocs, are big, strong, rugged tribes. The larger part of the state has smaller, more peace-loving tribes.

In the year 1542, fifty years after the discovery of America, two clumsy ships sailed along the coast of California. The ships had the Spanish flag on their masts. The explorer was Juan Cabrillo, the discoverer of California. The Spanish had already discovered Lower California and made some settlements. He sailed onward until he reached San Diego bay. He then sailed until he came to Monterey bay, but it was too stormy to land. He sailed nearly to the Golden Gate, but turned back.

For many years no ship touched California's shores, until one ship, laden with gold, landed in a little inlet thirty miles from San Francisco bay. It was the vessel of Sir Francis Drake. Deciding that his ship was in need of repairs, he landed in what we call Drake's bay, in memory of him.

In 1769, Portola and his party left La Paz, in Lower California, for San Diego, with his famous Catholic priest, Junipero Serra. Father Serra came to establish missions and to civilize the Indians. Governor Portola and some followers discovered San Francisco bay while they were looking for Monterey.

Years after, Captain Sutter had a saw mill, and one morning while inspecting the trough, which he floated his logs in, he found a bright, shining object which was gold. Soon the news spread all over the United States. People flocked from every corner of America to California. People endured many hardships in crossing the country. They had the Rocky mountains to cross and the deserts, without any water, except their own supply.

On nearly every stream you would find miners. Settlements grew, and people kept coming. Afterward, it was found that gold was not the only important part of California. They found the rich, fertile soil and began to plant crops and the farms grew until finally gold was not the important product. They raised cattle and alfalfa and planted orange groves. Today some of the largest cities of the United States are in California.

A WORD TO THE WISE

By WESLEY A. HAVERMALE, '24

Teachers are wise beings. They have spent years in preparing themselves for their work. They are even authorities on some subjects, nevertheless they are human (some of them are) and probably err as often as the rest of the genus homo. The superior qualities of teachers will, of course, be in contrast with the faults which are enumerated in the form of a series of don'ts below.

Teachers, tutors and instructors, don't be unapproachable. Be a good sport and laugh at a joke if there is one at which laughing is appropriate. Be one of the class and see their side of all questions; yet do not be undignified, but always demand respect. Treat the class as your equal, although they may not be so. Such treatment has a marvelous effect on the discipline of the class.

Don't be tyrants, for they are soon done away with or at least rebelled against. With tyranny over class comes the cranky and austere teacher who scowls and scolds constantly as a teased parrot. These stern and rigid "school marm" are fortunately not often holding sway in the classroom of a high school for the reason that they will not be tolerated there. It is just as easy to look pleasant as to be a demon in the garden of love. Someone has said that it takes twenty-seven muscles to frown, and only sixteen to smile, so take the easiest way and smile.

On the other hand, don't be too familiar or intimate with your class, as it breaks the respect for the dignity of your position which has been honored by races all through the ages. The teacher, although originally an educated slave, has always held a place of honor. However, there is little danger of having this fault of knowing your class too well.

Don't think too fast and above all don't talk too fast. By so doing you not only confuse yourself, but you confuse the class also. It is impossible to cross the bridge before you get there and as a result the explanation of the lesson is confused and imperfect. Take plenty of time for the explanation of the lesson and, although it may try your patience, be sure to make a request that questions be asked concerning it. An answer to this request is nearly always given and should be encouraged. Do not do as some instructors, who ask if there are any questions, and then fall to see the raised hands.

Don't be too critical. Don't quibble over mistakes of small consequence, but if criticism is necessary be sure to point out the better qualities as well as the faults. Make the class feel as if you meant to help them, and not to destroy their personal attempts toward striving ahead. Above all, do not criticize the person himself, especially as to his mental brilliancy. If you state sarcastically that you question a person's intelligence, you may know that you have not only enraged and embarrassed the person addressed, but also the rest of the class or other bystanders, who may pass it on with a laugh, but secretly they have felt the lash with the person thus insulted. This is considered an insult outside of a classroom. Why is it not one inside? I was a bystander at an incident like the one mentioned above and though I have forgiven it, I have not forgotten it, although others who saw a fellow student thus outraged may have lost recollection of it. An apology in the presence of the class would have been a fitting sequel to the first incident. Teachers who do not criticize handwriting are angels of kindness and compassion. Many students write poorly and cannot be aided to do better. An old saying tells us that the more talented the man, the poorer is his handwriting. Speaking confidentially, I wish to make it plain that I have very poor penmanship.

In giving examinations, thoughtful instructors use care to give them on days when a student is likely to be able to answer the questions with all his knowledge freshly in mind. For instance, they never give a test on Monday, as a pupil who may have really learned his work may be handicapped by excitement or indulgence from the day preceding, for Sunday seems to be a weekly holiday.

Of course, there are other sins of teachers as a whole which are not listed here, but do not think that any one teacher has all of the faults mentioned above. Neither think that but few have all of their opposites, those sterling characteristics which make the model teacher. In conclusion, remember that the model teacher does not think of his pay check, but takes an active interest and pleasure in seeing his students progress and gain in knowledge.

WHY GO THROUGH HIGH SCHOOL

By HAROLD CHRISMAN, '26

This is the question that has entered the mind of many a student when he is asked to prepare for the required of the daily lessons. It has been stated that only five per cent of the graduates of the grade schools complete the high school course. This is an exceedingly unfortunate state of affairs, for at least, a high school education are surprisingly great. Permit me to mention five reasons why such a program should be completed.

First, one should go through high school for the development of the mind. The mind responds to exercise just as do the muscles of the body. It is impossible for one's mind to develop without applying it to different subjects. This is why the tasks given the students must not be too easy. By strenuous work one gains the mind is thus developed and broadened. The high school is indispensable to this mental development.

In the second place, go through high school for the knowledge that may be acquired. The foundations of knowledge are laid here, in high school. Pupils are taught certain rules, methods and processes that are of the greatest importance. The value of certain facts relating both to history and science are beyond comparison. Without the information gained in a high school course one's chances for success in life must be greatly limited.

In the third place, go through high school for the practical training it gives in business arithmetic, carpentry, automobile mechanics and all manual arts. Such knowledge always widens one's field of service and contributes greatly to one's success.

In the fourth place, go through high school for the prestige it gives. A high school diploma is a great help in securing a position. If one has had the ambition and energy to complete a high school course it speaks well for him. There is one bank in a large western city that employs none but high school graduates. In this connection it should be remembered that without such a course well completed it is impossible to enter any of the higher institutions of learning.

Last, but not least, go through high school for the helpful association. It is not always helpful, but generally so. Coming into contact with students of various positions and temperaments broadens one's outlook, teaches courtesy and self-control and often proves a stimulus to greater achievements. By all means, go through high school.

AN IDEAL SCHOOL

By WESLEY HAVERMALE, '24

Any school that is looked upon as an ideal one has certain factors which have given it this distinction. A school of renown could not hold its place of eminence if it did not possess an efficient faculty, a superior class of students, a certain amount of school spirit, and sufficient buildings and equipment to accommodate the students' needs. Not one of these factors can be eliminated, for each is essential to the unit of a modern school that excels.

With these essentials in mind, we might apply them to any school and see how it measures up to these requirements. Let us examine carefully Glendale Union High School and determine her standing among the other schools.

Taking the first requirement, an efficient faculty, we notice immediately that the teachers of this school are modern, experienced and in sympathy with their work, which certainly proves their efficiency.

The student bodies of all schools vary so greatly that comparison often seems unfair. However, anyone who has been in contact with student bodies elsewhere is forced to remark about the type of student found here. Nowhere is the student body so free from the foreign element, poverty, indifference and other things that tend to lower the school's standing, as here, where well-dressed students come from good homes of the middle classes and from harmonious surroundings.

This superior environment naturally makes a student what he is today—a healthy, red-blooded American, full of vigor, which is shown and brought out in high school life. In this school enthusiasm has created a thing called school spirit. This spirit, which is akin to patriotism, is so strong that here the entire school is one in spirit in all student body affairs and activities. We measure up to the demand in this respect.

Let us now see to the last requirement, good buildings and equipment. Glendale is now having plans drawn to construct a new plant for the education of its students, for which far more than one-half million dollars have been expended. This new school will have buildings in which we can take civic pride, and will also have modern apparatus and equipment for the students' use.

We can find nothing here in which our school does not measure up. It was once classed as a small school, but now it is on a par with the larger ones, if not the premier of them all. A new era for our alma mater is coming in which all will hold the place of honor. So here's to greater G. U. H. S., an ideal school, "straight ahead."

WESLEY HAVERMALE.

THE SCHOOL AND NATURALIZATION

By MARY STANLEY, '24

Statistics from "Schooling of the Immigrant," by Frank V. Thompson.

America looks up to her schools as the main factor for making good, English-speaking citizens of the immigrants; but here the question arises, is the school the main instrument for Americanization?

Statistics, relating to the ability of the foreign-born in this country to speak our tongue, will indicate that the school up to 1910, at least, has not been the controlling factor in the immigrant's acquisition of English. Of the 13,000,000 immigrants in our country in 1910, 3,000,000 were non-English-speaking. Of the whole number, 10,000,000 were not acquainted with English at the time of their arrival. Only 760,000 of the 13,000,000 were young enough to come under the compulsory school attendance laws of the various states. About 7,000,000 non-English-speaking immigrants had learned our language sufficiently well to be recorded as English-speaking in the census of 1910, and must have acquired their knowledge of English largely outside of the schools, for the figures of the attendance at the evening schools does not permit the conclusion that they obtained their knowledge in these. It is also true that a minority of 3,000,000 immigrants had failed to learn to speak English either in or outside of the schools, let alone the far greater number who cannot read or write English.

We also find that in the one school year of 1910 only 13 per cent of the adult non-English-speaking immigrants were found in the schools. We realize, however, the need for a common language and a one-language-nation, not only so that the immigrant can understand us and our customs, but so that we can understand the immigrant, who is so often misunderstood, and to help him.

We also see the great need of the school having as a definite aim the Americanization of the immigrant, as well as the citizenship of the native American. While the school naturally and unconsciously fits the pupil for citizenship by the training and impressions he receives, we seldom find the definite purpose of training for citizenship in the elementary schools, although such a course is offered in the high school, the benefits of which are not fully realized, as a greater share of immigrants and the poorer classes cannot afford to go through high school. By this I mean we do not find the teachers of the grades especially trained or sufficiently familiar with the various necessary fundamentals of citizenship for teaching civics. Only in the special civics classes are the requirements for a good citizen spoken of.

We necessarily recognize the importance of Americanization or nationalization, and wouldn't we find a comparatively easy way through the difficulty by special training of teachers in the elementary schools and by offering attractions, privileges and greater help to the immigrants, instead of the hateful compulsion?

Pat Hegarty had just purchased a mule, but he did not obtain from the animal all that he required of it.

So he went his way back to the horse dealer. "You said the mule was quite tame," he said to the dealer. "And so he is tame, isn't he?" replied the dealer in an aggressive tone.

"Not altogether—only partially so," the disconsolate Hegarty replied. "He is tame in front, I dare say, but he is desperately wild behind!"

Let us now see to the last requirement, good buildings and equipment. Glendale is now having plans drawn to construct a new plant for the education of its students, for which far more than one-half million dollars have been expended. This new school will have buildings in which we can take civic pride, and will also have modern apparatus and equipment for the students' use.

THE SCHOOLS AS WEALTH PRODUCERS

Back of modern science is the school; the basis of the practical arts is pure science; behind scientific farming is the experiment station; guarding our water and milk supply stands the bacteriologist; manufacturing waits on the chemist and the physicist; our transportation systems demand the engineer; and the mathematician furnishes the instrument of calculation and precision of measurement without which the achievements of the other sciences would be impossible.

The schools not only train the scientific experts, but what is quite as necessary produce a body of intelligent men and women who appreciate and apply to practical purposes what the genius of the race discovers.

The school is the greatest wealth producing agency in the world because it develops and furnishes with power and purpose the greatest instrument for creating wealth—the human mind. The wealth of the world, both material and spiritual, is in the possession of the nations that spend most on their schools. — Charles McKenny, President Michigan State Normal College, Ypsilanti, Michigan.

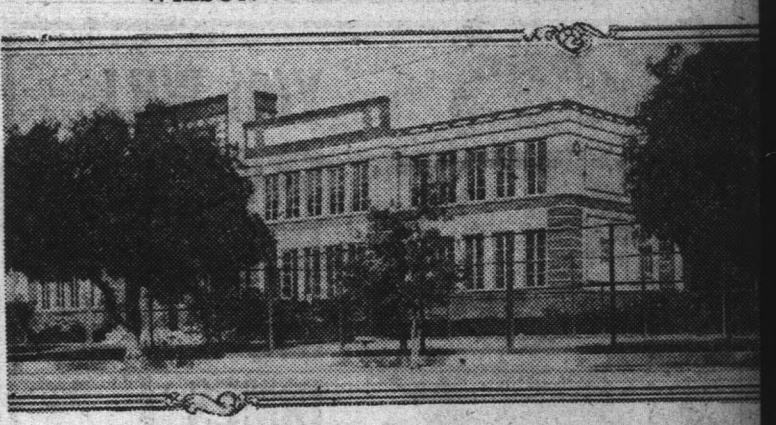

PETE

By Ethel Knapp, Age 13 Years; Grade A-7, Glendale Ave. Int.

Pete is a Boston bull dog. His short, close, brown hair is similar to that of a horse; his body thick-set like that of a lion. One side of his head and both ears are dark brown, the other side is snow white. His small ears stand up straight as if they feared to miss a sound. He has large brown eyes that seem to speak for him and express all his thoughts. His short stubby tail swiftly follows the example of his eyes in showing expression.

Pete is always looking out for a chance to play, having a playful, happy, contented disposition except when another dog is in sight, then he is in a fighting mood at once.

WAR GEOLOGY IS NEW WORK DEVELOPED

To Be Taught at University of Southern California by Dr. Bailey

Sponsored by no less an authority on practical affairs than the war department of the United States government, the study of geology has come to the front with astounding strides. In wars to come, commanding officers will either have to be geologists as well as strategists or have accredited geologists as part of their staff. For geological knowledge will be one of the great factors in future wars.

Dr. Gilbert Bailey, head of the geological department of the University of Southern California, has already responded to the request sent out by the war department to colleges and universities of the country that geology be taught from the new angle, and he is introducing a course in commercial and political geology which is proving very popular, he said.

West Point for the first time is introducing this study preparing future army officers along this line. So if it's score, one for geology, blame it all on the war—its shoulders are broad—for it was on the battlefield that the need for geological knowledge was demonstrated with the sacrifice of many a brave life.

And because Dr. Bailey is a scientist and not a dreamer he points to concrete facts in demonstrating the new place which geology is taking in making world history as well as in education. He cites the fact that in the early days of the World War, England loaded many ships with road material to build war roads in France over which to transport her armies—and loaded these boats to cross the channel from Dover to Calais amid the dangers of the submarine, at a time when every ship was needed to carry men and ammunition. All the material for such construction was near at hand in France, and if the army had been equipped with geologists to make a study of the war country, it would have utilized local resources instead of taxing the already overburdened transportation facilities of the army.

Every commanding officer should at least have a working knowledge of geology, according to Dr. Bailey, and to back this statement he points to the fact that a French regiment was sent to a strategic terrace on the front with orders to entrench itself and to hold it. That hundreds of lives were sacrificed needlessly because the commanding officer did not know that the terrace had but six inches of soil and below that meager stratum of soil was solid sandstone. Brave soldiers made the supreme sacrifice for the lack of a knowledge of geology.

Future wars may conform to Sherman's description, but it will be on a more scientific basis, for

MISS WILLIAMS IS HOSTESS TO ST. MARK'S GUILD

The ladies of St. Mark's Guild met Thursday afternoon with Miss E. M. Williams, 329 East Dryden street. There were 31 ladies present, and Mrs. Mortimer Baker, president of the guild, was in charge.

After a brief business session the afternoon was spent socially and a delicious luncheon served by the hostess and her sister.

Final arrangements were made for the church dinner and bazaar to be held Tuesday night at the church. Mrs. J. H. Murphy is chairman of the dinner. Her assistants will be Miss Louise Packer in charge of tables, Mrs. Stoner, salad, and Dr. Ehle, dessert.

A fancy work booth will be in charge of Mrs. Archie Parker. A program will be furnished by Miss Lila Litch, which promises to be a fine one. Dinner will be served at 6 o'clock, tickets being 50 cents.

CANDLESTICKS

A charming Christmas gift which would be most acceptable and is extremely reasonable in price is a pair of graceful candlesticks made of Italian pottery. These come in different sizes and may be purchased reasonably.

Geologists will direct the building of war tunnels and the arranging of location as well as the draining of trenches.

Geologists familiar with California mines drained the trenches in France in the last months of the war by letting the water down instead of pumping it up, declared Dr. Bailey, who added that late in the war geologists built tunnels at a lower level than those dug by the Germans, and that American tunnels, following certain formations, were kept dry, while the Germans were working in other formations which were wet all the time.

And we beat them to it in this part of the warfare through a knowledge of geology, he added.

A BOSTON SAFETY PLAN

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Handicaps of Childhood," Etc. (Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers)

The Boston police force, at the behest of Superintendent M. H. Crowley, has undertaken a useful duty, which might well be undertaken by police officers everywhere. Its object is to lower the accident death rate by endeavoring to put a stop to the ancient custom, widespread among boys, of "hooking rides."

It will, to be sure, be no easy matter to do this.

From time immemorial, probably from the time of the first wagon, the sight of a moving vehicle has been a tacit invitation to the young to run after and clamber upon it. The adventurous spirit of youth, its insatiable craving for excitement and the convenience of riding have all contributed to the perpetuation of the "ride-hooking" practice.

Nevertheless it has always been exceedingly dangerous. And its dangers have multiplied with the growth of cities and the invention of new and more rapid means of transportation.

Formerly, when vehicles were horse-drawn and the streets less crowded, the chief danger was inexperience on the part of the boy stealing a ride. This danger still is present, and in addition there are such dangers as being jounced from swift-moving auto trucks, being struck by other vehicles coming up unexpectedly, and so forth.

So real are these dangers and so insistent are small boys in "hooking rides" despite them, that more and more boys are all the while being killed or seriously injured. Impressed by the growing gravity of this street peril in Boston, Superintendent Crowley has issued a drastic order to the officers in his command.

The order provides that the name and address of every boy caught stealing a ride are to be taken and an official warning will then be sent to that boy's parents, warning them that they will be held responsible if their boy continues to risk his life in this way. Failure of the parents to heed this warning will cause them to be brought into court.

School teachers have been asked to cooperate by reading the order to their classes and pleading with the pupils to cease stealing rides. Similar action should be taken by teachers in other cities and towns, perhaps utilizing as a basis for their pleading this lesson on "hitching" issued by the Safety Institute of America:

"Jumping on a moving trolley car, automobile or wagon is dangerous. You may lose your footing and be thrown under the wheels, or you may fall on the pavement and fracture your skull or break an arm or leg.

"Jumping off is also apt to cause you injury or death. Not only are you apt to fall and be run over, but also you may run in front of an automobile which is coming up from behind or about to pass.

"Stealing rides is dangerous fun. When you steal a ride you usually have a poor place to ride and you are in danger of falling off.

"It is extremely dangerous to catch on to an automobile or street car when you are roller-skating or riding a bicycle. The speed of the car is so great that you may lose control of yourself and be thrown to the pavement or under the car."

In the last analysis, however, the efficiency of all safety campaigns such as this depends on the cooperation of parents.

Superintendent Crowley is right in fastening the ultimate responsibility on them. And if "hooking rides" continues in the future as it has in the past, with its attendant fatalities, it will only be because of parental ignorance, negligence or unwillingness to exercise proper authority in the home.

Can you find the real Santa Claus? How good are your eyes? How carefully do you read advertisements? Read about this novel Santa Claus contest and the opportunity to get some extra Christmas money.

In the various advertisements in today's paper you will find pictures of our old friend, "Santa Claus."

These pictures of old Santa all have points of similarity, but if your eyes are keen you will note that most of them differ in some small detail.

You will find a Santa Claus picture EXACTLY like this one in one of the advertisements in this paper today.

When you find it, clip out the entire mercantile advertisement containing the right picture and bring it promptly to the Glendale Daily Press office, 222 South Brand.

INCLOSE WITH YOUR ANSWER a brief answer to the following question: "WHY DO YOU READ ADVERTISEMENTS BEFORE YOU DO YOUR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING?"

Put the clipping of the entire advertisement into an envelope with your answer to the question and write your name and address on the outside.

The four persons who bring the correct advertisement with the neatest and best answers to the question to the Glendale Daily Press office will each be awarded Two Dollars.

Mr. William Jeckel, an artist of ability, has consented to act as judge in this contest, and contestants must agree to accept his decisions as final.

One or more misspelled words are in the advertisements in this issue, and the successful contestants must also point out the misspelled word or words in their answers submitted. All answers must be returned to the Contest Editor of the Glendale Daily Press not later than Wednesday, Dec. 13.

NEBRASKA MEN ORGANIZE NEW INSTITUTION

The Glendale Building and Loan association will open its doors soon at 212 1/2 West Broadway, and will, after its formal bow, do everything it possibly can for the upbuilding of Glendale.

Its purpose will be, primarily, to assist the would-be home owners of Glendale and the surrounding territory in realizing their dreams along the home line. To the man who owns his lot it will loan to the extent of 60 percent of the total value of the lot, and the home to be constructed upon it. In addition, it will lend assistance in every way in the construction of the dwelling and will do everything possible to see that the building is constructed without loss to the home-owner.

The money that is loaned by the Glendale Building and Loan association will be repayable in monthly installments of $14 for each $1000 borrowed, this amount including interest on the balance of a loan. A certain portion of the payment applies on the principal, so that gradually the principal is paid off. The whole or any part of the loan may be repaid at any time.

Another part of the business of this association is its investment certificates, that are issued to encourage thrift. These are issued in installments or fully paid certificates.

The installment certificates are payable $1 per month per $100 certificate, each certificate being fully paid in 81 months. Any number of certificates may be secured. Six percent interest, compounded semi-annually is paid on these certificates.

The fully paid certificates are issued in denominations of $100, and multiples thereof. Six percent interest, also, is paid on these certificates, payable semi-annually. All of the money invested in these certificates in Glendale will be loaned in this city for building purposes.

There are several factors that insure absolute safety in the investment certificates of this concern. The guaranteed capital of the association is a permanent investment, pledged as security to investors. All funds received by the association are loaned on the security of improved real estate.

DRIVE FOR BIG DIVIDENDS IS NOW ON

State Corporation Department Warns Against Frauds

Information has been received in the State Corporation Department to the effect that what might be called a concerted drive is about to be made by questionable concerns, and individuals to reap a harvest of the immense sums being paid to investors during this so-called reinvesting period. This is no new stunt, but prospective investors may safeguard their dollars by being on their guard against the fraudulent salesman and his worthless paper.

Commissioner Edwin M. Daugherty today has sounded a warning that should be heeded by all who have benefited from crop returns or are about to receive principal or interest on U. S. or other bonds, or dividends from stocks or savings deposits.

The first step, said the commissioner, is to ascertain if the proposition presented is an honest one and has a fair chance of success. If the prospective investor does not have the facilities to determine this—and the average man does not—he should consult his banker or a competent financier or a professional man in whom he has confidence.

The next step is to ascertain if the securities offered are authorized to be sold in this state. This may be ascertained by communicating with the Commissioner of Corporations at 808 Forum Building, Sacramento.

The third step is to ascertain if the salesman offering a security is licensed. This may also be ascertained by writing to the department.

A good safeguard, so the commissioner advises, is to ask to see a copy of the company's permit and read it carefully. Also to demand to be shown the salesman's license, either broker or agent.

If the company has no permit, and the salesman has no license, the investor should look askance at the offer, and should make more than the usual investigation before purchasing.

A little diligence may save the contents of a purse.

THE OTHER FELLOW

I wonder if ever I'll come to see Myself the fellow I'd like to be;
Strong to suffer and not complain,
Ready to do the task again
If I fail at first; willing to share,
Slow to judge and my judgment fair,
Wanting no thing that is not for me,
The kind of fellow I'd like to be.

It's a long, long trail, just now from me
To the kind of a fellow I'd like to be.
To the heart and soul and mind of his,
For I know the kind of a fellow he is.
Ready to help and to ask no praise,
Cheerful through all of the cloudy days,
The kind of a friend I'd like for me
Is the kind of a fellow I'd like to be.

Then it's struggle along the long, long trail,
Rise and fall and strive and fail.
A bitter cry and a snatch of song,
Weak sometimes and sometimes strong,
The laughter rings and the hot tears blur,
But never the fellow I wish I were,
But I'm glad I've got the vision to see
The kind of a fellow I'd like to be.

OBSERVATIONS

BY A GLENDALE OLD TIMER

El G. Lewis, who put over the Palos Verdes project, is one man who staged a come-back after many years. Some people, you know, say that can't be done. Lewis had a similar project when he lived in St. Louis about 20 years ago, with an added feature, a publishing house on the grounds, from which he issued monthly magazines. These were barred from the mails by Geo. Cortelyou, then postmaster-general, and Cortelyou, a great many people thought, and still think Cortelyou really persecuted Lewis, and he kept up his opposition until Lewis was ruined. Many people who bought stock in his enterprise lost money, but few blamed him. He seems to be on firm ground with his present project and maybe will want to reimburse his trusting friends for their losses twenty years ago.

The 19th century was a period of unexampled growth of our country, the progress of which never suffered a serious check until the time of the Civil war. The war of 1812 and the conflict with Mexico did not stop the upward progress, but instead added new laurels and gave new impetus to America's growth. But certain years stand out as periods of disaster or portent, and these will be long remembered. First was the great earthquake in the Mississippi valley in 1811 and 1812. During the greater part of those 24 months there were intermittent shocks, some of great violence, and imagination cannot picture the loss of life and treasure that would result from a similar catastrophe now. The great river was diverted from its course in many places, and new islands were made; the town of New Madrid, Mo., was almost destroyed; sulphurous vapors issued from earth cracks; the end of the world was thought by many to be at hand. A strip of ground, nearly all of it now in western Tennessee, sank a hundred feet or more, giant forest trees and all, and a lake was formed, which still is a feature of that section. It is known as Reelfoot lake, and is a great fishing resort. Trunks of trees engulfed in the cataclysm of more than a century ago still are to be seen in great numbers, some of them over 50 feet high. Occasionally boats are caught by branches of these trees reaching almost to the surface of the water. There are places in the lake where bottom has never been sounded and this gives seeming proof of the assertion that the waters are fed by subterranean veins far below the surface. Anyhow, with no apparent inflow from streams the lake retains practically the same level all the year around. The next ominous happening after this was the year without a summer, 1833. Crops were ruined completely, ice formed in August where in ordinary seasons the mercury hovered around the century mark during most of that month. In 1833 occurred the "shower of meteors" when it seemed indeed that the sky was falling, and many people were sure the end of the world was but a matter of days. In 1843 the Millerites declared that the end would surely come at midnight of August 12, and hundreds of families sold all their property or gave it away just before the fateful hour was to strike. This craze shook the entire nation, so in earnest were its advocates and so exactly (to their own minds) had they manipulated the prophecies of Daniel and Revelation. The only two books of the Bible that present figures regarding this fore-shadowed event. The leaders of the movement were mostly ignorant but evidently sincere theologians, who decided in their own minds that the prophecies meant certain things, then proceeded to prove their assertions. Of course most of the poor dupes lost the property they had parted with and many became skeptics. Since that year many dates have been fixed upon as the "positively last appearance" of this old earth in space, but somehow it still wags on. It seems passing strange to a level-headed student of the Bible that an event the time of which is known only to the Father, not even to the Son and the angels around the throne, should be predicted so positively by mere men, who thereby arrogate to themselves like knowledge above that of God Himself.

George Hashitana, a Japanese who works for Mrs. Eva Hutton, 326 East Colorado, was out in the woods recently looking for ferns when he noticed a cloud of dirt about the size of a woman's fist, and a large striped spider had just run from. George killed the spider, then picked up the cloud, which proved to be the home of the insect. There was a tunnel, the most door of which seemed to be made of a substance like paper, but much finer. It evidently was compressed webbing, such as a spider reels off. This door was hinged so that it opened and shut easily, and was so perfectly fitted that when closed the front seemed solid. The tunnel was perfectly round and was lined with the same fine substance that composed the door. This lining extended back from the end of the tunnel several inches, in a tube-like form. The whole thing is a wonderful specimen of insect architecture, and George was so impressed with the ingenuity of its builder that he said: "I never going to kill another spider."

Isn't it a singular thing that not one of the many municipalities swallowed up by the city of Los Angeles in recent years sends out speakers to help not other victims? While "misery loves company," these speakers that have given up their municipal liberty trying to persuade other intended victims from joining their "crowd sorrow." But, on the other hand, nearly all of these victimized communities are eager to join in the warning to others to "stay out." San Pedro, Hollywood, Van Nuys, Sawtelle, all now writhing victims of the big city's greed for more population, are sending out the warning. "Profit by our sad fate and stay out. Once in, you can never get loose." With these examples of misplaced confidence before us, why should any citizen of Glendale, who loves his home town and exults in its slogan, heard almost at the ends of the earth, "Glendale, the fastest growing city in America," be willing to pull Los Angeles' chestnuts out of the fire? Why submerge our identity, lose our proud name and become simply a small part of the big city? All over the world Glendale is a synonym for marvelous growth and unsurpassed natural environment. Let us rise as one man and say to the enveloping hosts of the greedy monster, Los Angeles, "You shall not pass!"

Ever since Armistice Day, Nov. 11, 1918, there has been a fruitless discussion over "which nation won the war?" No nation won it, is the appalling truth. Both sides stopped fighting before either won. In view of the happenings of the last four years, well would it have been if the allied forces had pushed the German armies back into their own country and they would not permit wronged France to forcibly collect refused damages from the brutal nation that violated all the laws of warfare and of civilization. Germany will never regain her former standing as a nation of industry and efficiency until she assumes the burden which her own folly, arrogance and cruelty brought upon her. Honesty pays, she will find out, if she can ever be induced or forced to try it.

One way to make a living is to find a job of real work and make connections with a good pay roll through the job.

THURSDAY BIBLE CLASS MEETS AT CHURCH

The Thursday Morning Bible class for women met at the Glendale Presbyterian church yesterday morning with 179 women in attendance. The teacher, Mrs. A. L. Dennis, of Los Angeles, centered her thought around the tabernacle which God directed his chosen people, the Israelites, to make for his dwelling place among them as soon as they came out of Egypt. Everything about it and within it was to be made exactly according to directions, for everything had meaning, there was nothing extra nor without significance. Within the outer enclosure of white linen curtaining, the first thing was the great altar of burnt offering, by which everyone must come. An "altar" always meant a "lifted up" place, lifted up in order for the making of sacrifice. This explains Christ's meaning when he said, "If I be lifted up, I will draw all men unto me." This altar, in every detail of its form and of its service, was made to foreshadow Christ's atoning sacrifice for the sin of the world.

These classes will continue to meet each Thursday morning at 10 o'clock with Mrs. Dennis as teacher.
